Advancement Committee
Co-Chair

I was born and raised in Buenos Aires, Argentina. My high school was so small that our senior class was only 4 individuals, including myself. I then earned both my Bachelor of Science and Master's in Business Administration from Lynn University in Boca Raton, Florida.

As a former international and first-generation college student, anything is truly possible here! I've been fortunate enough to work in a variety of different areas within higher education and have served on numerous advisory boards. Outside of serving on the board, my full-time job is at the George Washington University, where I work within the Admissions Office to help underrepresented students find a voice within the GW community.

During my free time, I enjoy running (15+ half marathons), watching fútbol (I'll never finish celebrating the 2022 World Cup), traveling, trying new foods, and finding new things to do within DC.
